Banquet Guest Speaker: Joel Turner – Shot IQ

Joel shot his first bow at the age of seven. From the first time he saw the spinning flight of the arrow, he was completely immersed. Archery became his life. However, by the age of eight, target panic had engulfed him. This frustration carried all the way through to his adult life. He read everything, tried everything, hoping for that magic method to cure him of this ailment. It wasn't until he began the analysis process of his firearms shot that he realized there is no method out there that will work for him, he had to work for it, but he didn't know HOW to do the work. Research into his many failures and his few successes began the workings of the blueprint to control. Once he realized the two facts that target panic is the mind's natural path of efficiency and the core problem of the shooting mind is pre-ignition movements, he was able to develop the system of Controlled Process Shooting. More importantly, he was able to present a system of instruction that conveyed this message in common sense terms.
